The Association of International Education Administrators (AIEA) condemns not only recent acts of violence against Asians and Asian-Americans but also the much more pervasive racism and discrimination that has for too long and too often harmed non-white lives in our society. These horrific acts of violence remind us all of the urgent need to fight against systemic racism everywhere, including in our own institutional practices and policies, and to work daily toward a more inclusive and equitable society where all can feel valued and safe, and can thrive in the vibrant diversity inherent within our societies.
